

Corporations should not be allowed to own mutilple media outlest, this is monopoly building, so knock it off.

I heard about this public comment opportunity through word of mouth. The major networks have done very little to inform the public of this extremely important issue. The lack of coverage of this issue by the major media companies has at least the appearance of a conflict of interest. This inaction on the part of the major media companies threatens to undermine the legitimacy of the FCC's regulatory process. This leaves the FCC exposed to litigation that would have to be defended at the expense of tax payers.
